THE GATEWAY ARCH TICKET REQUIRED

As the nation's tallest monument, the Gateway Arch has welcomed visitors for more than 50 years with its iconic, awe-inspiring shape. The vision of renowned architect Eero Saarinen, the Arch celebrates Thomas Jefferson and St. Louis' role in the westward expansion of the United States. If you've never seen the grandeur of this architectural wonder or the breathtaking views of St. Louis 630 feet in the air — now is your chance.

During construction, all visitors are required to have a timed ticket to enter the Gateway Arch. The Ticketing and Visitor Center is located at the Old Courthouse, 11 North 4th Street, St. Louis, MO 63102.

While the Museum of Westward Expansion is closed to allow for construction of new museum exhibits, the Old Courthouse features three exhibit galleries with artifacts from the former museum. These FREE exhibits tell the story of Lewis and Clark, Native Americans, the fur trade and life in colonial St. Louis.

Your visit to the Gateway Arch isn't complete without journeying to the top of the awe-inspiring, 630-foot tall Gateway Arch. Experience unforgettable views of St. Louis and the Mississippi River from your vantage point high atop the tallest man-made monument in the United States.
